Kashmir is an ethnically diverse Himalayan region covering 86000 sq. miles and famed for the beauty of its lakes, meadows and snow-capped mountains. Under the partition plan of 1947 provided by Indian Independence act, Kashmir was free to accede to either India or Pakistan. The Maharaja Hari Singh initially wanted Kashmir to become independent but in October 1947, he chose to join India, in veturn for its help against an invasion of tribesmen from Pakistan. For 7 years there has been violence between India and Pakistan due to separatist insurgency against Indian rule. Indian government revoked article 370 & 35A of the Indian Constitution – which had earlier allowed the state a certain amount of autonomy – its own constitution, a separate flag and freedom to make laws – therefore state made its own rules relating to permanent residency, ownership of property and fundamental rights.
