- For children too there is no greater instrument of education than the conversation they hear at home. It is unjust to them when nothing is spoken before them but the trifles of dress, the gossip of neighborhood the cares of the household the follies and vanities of the world which are hardly apprehended by their innocent minds. They are naturally imitative and a great part of their character is derived from their parents. If there is no life of mirth in a house the children of the house will be dull and stupid and if they never hear subjects rationally discussed they will not learn to think of reason. This home education which they acquire insensibly is as important as the mere formal work of the school and it is as much our duty to provide food for their minds as for their bodies. They do not live by bread alone, but by every word that proceeds out of the mouth.

Unit-IV

4. (a) Read the following passage carefully and answer the questions below : 10
- One of the great defects of our civilization is that it does not know what to do with its knowledge. Science has given us powers fit for the Gods, yet we use them like small children. For example we do not know how to manage our machines. Machines were made to be man's servant yet he was grown so dependent on them that they are in fair way to become his masters. Already most men spend most of their lives looking after and waiting upon machines. And the machines are very stern masters. They must be fed with coal and given petrol to drink and oil to wash with and they must be kept at the right temperature. And if they do not get their meals when they expect them they grow sulky and refuse to work of burst with rage and blow up and spread ruin and destruction all round.

Questions:-
